DID YOU KNOW?

Lion's Mane Mushrooms look like icy spikes that resemble the mane of a lion. They have a mild sweet flavor that some people say tastes like crab or lobster, and have a long history of holistic health benefits. Lion's Mane mushrooms have compounds similar to NGF, a nerve growth factor in our brain. Antioxidant properties of Lion's Mane mushrooms are good for health, and for fighting inflammation.

KEY INGREDIENTS:

L-Theanine is an adaptogenic, amino acid found naturally in green tea, black tea, and some mushrooms. It can help you adapt to stressful situations, and help your body fight cortisol caused by stress. Some research also shows that it can help support a healthy immune function and promote healthy sleep. There is no caffeine in L-Theanine. L-Theanine has been known to promote relaxation and alertness without causing drowsiness, while supporting focus and mental clarity.

Lion's Mane Mushroom Extract is a powerful, concentrated extract of the Lions Mane mushroom derived from the fruiting body, which has healthy beta glucans. Lion's Mane is widely used globally for its health promoting benefits. It can help promote focus, while being good for gut health too.

Purple Carrot Juice used for natural color. Purple carrots existed thousands of years ago, before orange carrots were grown. An Australian study showed that the purple carrot has up to 28 times more anthocyanin antioxidants than those in orange carrots. Anthocyanins are antioxidants that help protect your body from oxidative stress at the cellular level.
